

CHECK IT OUT

No wonder we keep squaring up season after season- checks are boyish, girly and subversive all at once. But evidently our designers decided that a more drastic upgrade was due this season and have daringly doubled up on the details. Here's what they did.

FRILL THEM

Crafting focal frills out of punkish plaid is an unexpected stroke of genius by Isabel Marant Étoile. Besides radiating edgy romance, the ruching on the dress and the top's bustier are incredibly flattering.

MAGNIFY THEM

Ace & Jig excel at pairing the right prints with their beautiful, bespoke textiles and by supersizing the squares here, the textures and colours can be equally admired. This easy dress is a holiday must-pack.

PANEL THEM

To make a bigger statement with monochrome gingham, both Isa Arfen and A.W.A.K.E playfully panelled the print on clean silhouettes. The former clashed checks while the latter added two contrasting shades on top.

SEQUIN THEM

Technicolour tartan is what you'd expect from colour happy Marco de Vincenzo and to take this ruffled skirt up another notch, he sequinned the surface. Now there's a shimmer to every sashay.

TIE THEM

If you zoom in and turn Saks Potts' grid print blouse around, you'll notice the adorable bow fastenings in pastel gingham. It's a tantalising twist for this minimal, two-tone style along with the ruffle collar.

ON THE FLIP SIDE

Sonia Rykiel simply combined and elevated two failsafe classics by printing a traditional trench shape with a timeless gingham check. The D ring belt and sleeve straps bring this smart coat bang up-to-date.
