

THE MAGIC OF MARCO DE VINCENZO

30px

Introducing the brilliant new collection

70px

One of the new guard of exciting designers shaking up Milan Fashion Week, Marco de Vincenzo is making waves with his wow-worthy womenswear. With the magpie eye of a maximalist backed up with precise craftsmanship, de Vincenzo blends experimental embellishments, lavish textures and vivid colours. The result? A modern take on glamour that also happens to be supremely wearable (just ask Beyoncé, who wore de Vincenzo's red and white lace dress to the White House).

Marco De Vincenzo, @MarcoDeVincenzo

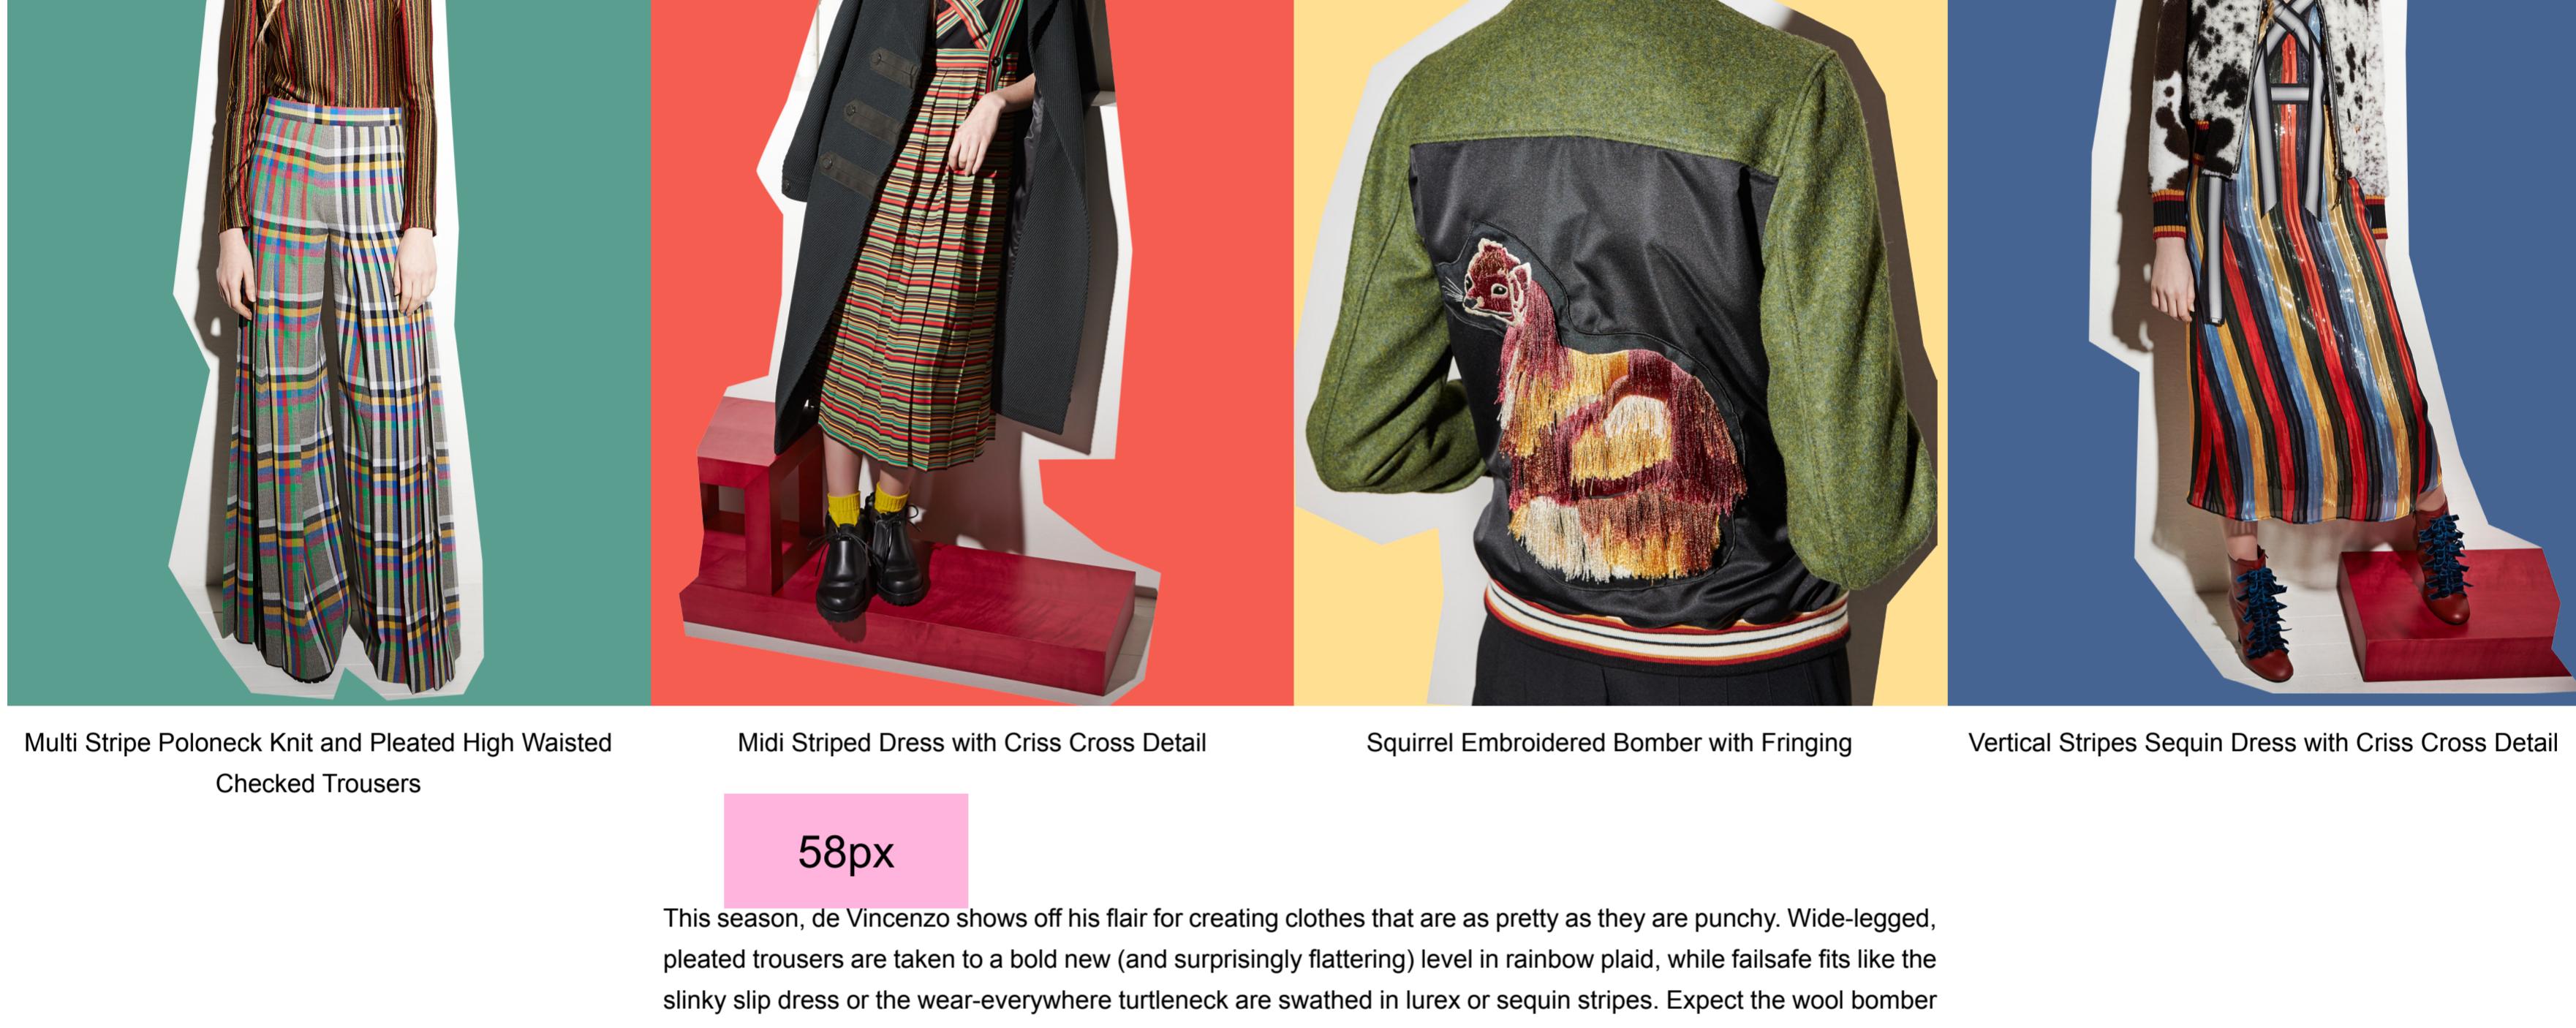

100px

Marco de Vincenzo

31px

CLICK TO SHOP >

51px

Multi Stripe Poloneck Knit and Pleated High Waisted Checked Trousers

Midi Striped Dress with Criss Cross Detail

Squirrel Embroidered Bomber with Fringing

Vertical Stripes Sequin Dress with Criss Cross Detail

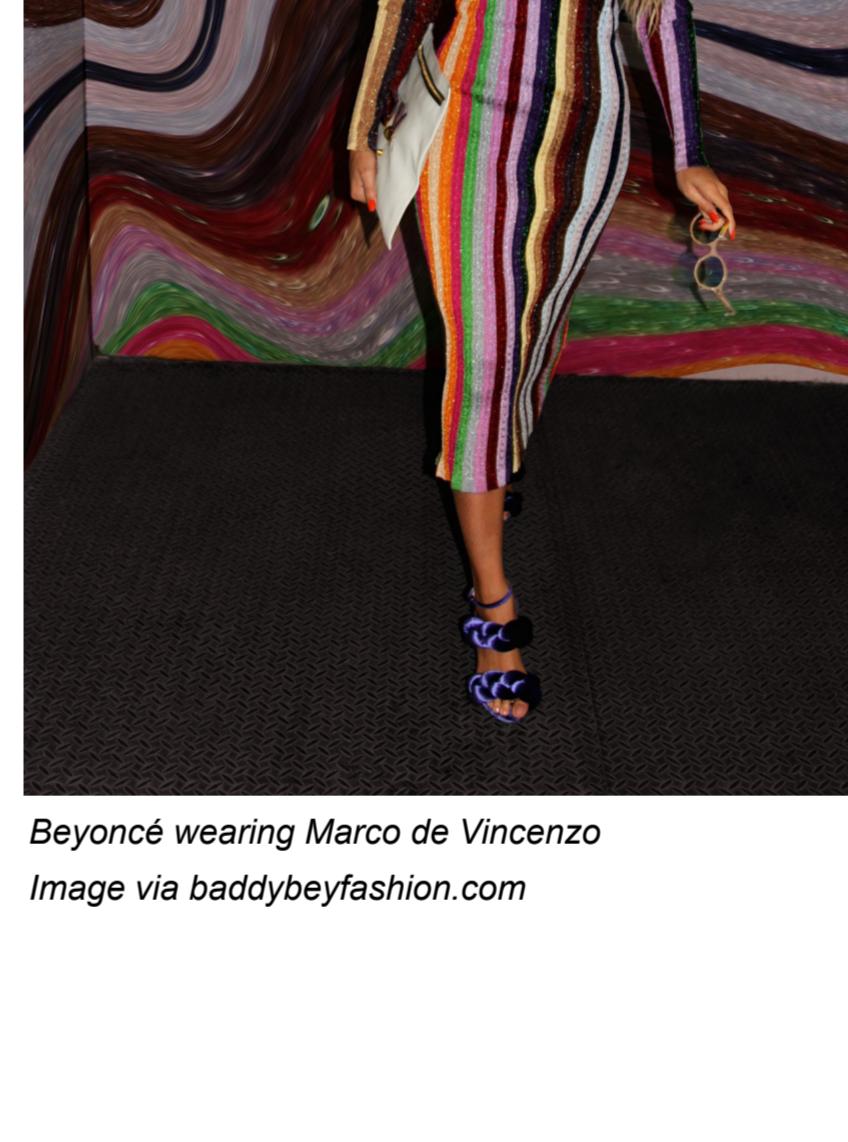

58px

This season, de Vincenzo shows off his flair for creating clothes that are as pretty as they are punchy. Wide-legged, pleated trousers are taken to a bold new (and surprisingly flattering) level in rainbow plaid, while failsafe fits like the slinky slip dress or the wear-everywhere turtleneck are swathed in lurex or sequin stripes. Expect the wool bomber embroidered with a squirrel to assume trophy status in your wardrobe this season.

58px

Beyoncé at the White House
Image via fashionbombdaily.com

Beyoncé wearing Marco de Vincenzo
Image via baddybeyfashion.com